

Reading Passage: Lily and the Magical Garden (Fiction 5)

Lily was a little girl who loved flowers. She spent hours in her garden, watering the plants and talking to them. One sunny morning, Lily discovered a tiny door hidden behind the big sunflower. The door was just the right size for her to crawl through.

Curious, Lily opened the door and stepped inside. She found herself in a magical garden filled with the most beautiful flowers she had ever seen. The flowers were as tall as trees and had petals that sparkled in the sunlight. There were roses, daisies, and tulips in every color imaginable.

As Lily walked through the garden, she met a friendly butterfly named Bella. Bella had shimmering wings that glowed in the sunlight. "Welcome to the magical garden," Bella said. "Would you like to see the Rainbow Flower?"

Lily nodded excitedly, and Bella led her to the center of the garden. There, in a golden pot, was the Rainbow Flower. Its petals were red, orange, yellow, green, blue, and purple, just like a rainbow. "This flower can make any wish come true," Bella explained.

Lily closed her eyes and made a wish. She wished for the magical garden to always be filled with flowers and happiness. When she opened her eyes, the Rainbow Flower glowed even brighter.

After a wonderful day in the magical garden, it was time for Lily to go home. She said goodbye to Bella and promised to visit again. As she crawled back through the tiny door, she carried a small petal from the Rainbow Flower as a reminder of her adventure.

Back in her own garden, Lily planted the petal. To her amazement, it grew into a beautiful Rainbow Flower. From that day on, Lily's garden was always full of magic and joy.
