

Intro: disposable paper towels are better than reusable cloth towels because they are convenient, easy to use. ^{Sounds BP} You can just simply throw them away when you're done. You can take them anywhere in case you need them and are found everywhere. Also you don't have to wash them after every use unlike cloth towels.

BP1: Paper towels are convenient. You can find them in almost every store. So you can use them whenever you want without worrying about having to get more. Whereas cloth towels you might need to buy multiple of and be more conservative and wash constantly, because you don't want to use all of them. Then you will have no towels left and you would also have to wash them all BP2: Paper towels are easier to use. ^{colleague} All you have to do is rip one clean up the mess and then just toss it in the trash. But for cloth towels you need to take them out then clean up the mess and then wash them if you want to use them again. Lots of people don't really have time to do this whole process and lots of people don't like to use this process because of how time consuming and labor intensive it is compared to paper towels. Making them easier to use.

BP3: Cloth towels are also good options. You don't have to buy as many cloth towels as you do paper towels so you will probably save money. Cloth towels are more environmentally safe compared to paper towels because you will have less waste.

Conclusion: ~~At the end~~ I recommend using paper towels instead of cloth towels. ^{Confidence} Since they are convenient, easy to use. Making them the better option in my opinion But cloth towels are also ok since you don't need too many and they are better for the environment. That is why I think that paper towels are better than cloth towels.
