

Grade7
Reading Poetry
The Whispering Winds of Change

In a small town nestled between hills and dales,

Lived folks of simple tales and age-old fables.

The winds there spoke, or so it seemed,

Of dreams, of whispers, and of worlds unteemed.

Each gust, a story from times of old,

A ballet of nature, gracefully bold.

Dancing with leaves, and singing with trees,

The winds carried secrets with the greatest of ease.

“There’s change afoot,” whispered the breeze one day,

“With hues of amber and gold, it’s on its way.”

The trees stood tall, with a rustle of anticipation,

Ready for the season’s magnificent transformation.

The children felt it, the change in the air,

A magical feeling, light as a feather’s flare.

They danced and they laughed, in circles they twirled,

Embracing the winds, as new stories unfurled.

With every leaf that from branches did part,

A piece of history, a work of art.

The winds told tales of courage and strife,

Of love and loss, and the dance of life.

They spoke of heroes, and villains too,

Of moments of joy, and sorrows that grew.

"Embrace the change," the winds did implore,

"For life is a journey, with much to explore."

As night fell, and stars adorned the sky,

The winds continued their lullaby.

"Dream big, dream bold," they softly said,

"Let not the fear of change fill your heart with dread."

For change is constant, as is the wind's song,

A reminder to keep moving, to stay strong.

With whispers of hope, and stories anew,

The winds of change are here to guide you through.

Questions:

1.What is the setting of the poem?

- A. A big city
- B. A small town
- C. A forest
- D. A beach

2.What do the winds in the town seem to do?

- A. Cause destruction
- B. Tell stories
- C. Bring rain
- D. Make people scared

3.What change is mentioned in the poem?

- A. The change of seasons
- B. People moving away
- C. Buildings being constructed
- D. The growth of plants

4. How do the children in the poem react to the change?

- A. They are scared
- B. They are excited
- C. They are indifferent
- D. They are sad

5. What do the leaves represent in the poem?

- A. A burden
- B. History and art
- C. A nuisance
- D. The arrival of winter

6. What advice do the winds give about change?

- A. To resist it
- B. To embrace it
- C. To ignore it
- D. To fear it

7. What does the poem suggest about life?

- A. It is unchanging
- B. It is full of sorrow
- C. It is a journey
- D. It is always happy

8. What is the main theme of the poem?

- A. The fear of change
- B. The joy of life
- C. The beauty of nature
- D. The importance of embracing change

9. What do the winds do as night falls?

- A. They stop blowing
- B. They blow stronger
- C. They sing a lullaby
- D. They bring rain

10. What does the poem encourage the reader to do?

- A. To stay where they are comfortable
- B. To resist change
- C. To dream big and embrace life's journey
- D. To fear the unknown

1. Answer: B. A small town Explanation: The poem begins with the line "In a small town nestled between hills and dales," establishing the setting.
2. Answer: B. Tell stories Explanation: The poem describes the winds as carrying stories, secrets, and whispers.
3. Answer: A. The change of seasons Explanation: The winds speak of a change with "hues of amber and gold," which indicates the arrival of autumn.
4. Answer: B. They are excited Explanation: The poem describes the children feeling a magical change in the air and responding with joy and laughter.
5. Answer: B. History and art Explanation: The poem refers to each falling leaf as a piece of history and a work of art.
6. Answer: B. To embrace it Explanation: The winds implore the listeners to embrace change, highlighting it as a constant part of life.
7. Answer: C. It is a journey Explanation: The winds speak of life as a journey with moments of joy, sorrow, and exploration.
8. Answer: D. The importance of embracing change Explanation: The poem emphasizes the inevitability of change and the importance of embracing it.
9. Answer: C. They sing a lullaby Explanation: The poem describes the winds continuing their story-telling with a lullaby as night falls.
10. Answer: C. To dream big and embrace life's journey Explanation: The poem ends with the winds encouraging the listener to dream big, embrace change, and continue on their journey through life.