Antonio and Julio Learn a Lesson

- 1 Antonio and Julio were twins. They shared everything. They shared the same birthday, the same bedroom, and the same friends. They both played on the same soccer team, and both boys shared all the same toys.
- 2 One Saturday, Antonio and Julio went outside to play with their red wagon. The twins loved the wagon. “I want to give my stuffed animals a ride,” said Antonio.
- 3 “I want to collect rocks,” said Julio. Both twins wanted to do different things with the same wagon. Antonio and Julio’s mother heard the boys arguing and came outside.
- 4 “You boys must share the wagon,” said Mother. Mother told Antonio and Julio to take turns with the wagon. The twins did not want to share the wagon.
- 5 A few days later, Antonio and Julio’s mother brought home a pet kitten for the boys. “Can’t we each have our own kitten?” asked the twins. They were tired of sharing everything.
- 6 “I’m sorry, but you must share one kitten,” Mother said. “You will have to feed the kitten and make sure she does not get into anything.” Now Antonio and Julio were even sharing a job.
- 7 A few days later, the kitten got into Mother’s sewing basket. In just a few minutes, the kitten had scattered balls of yarn all over the room. Julio saw the kitten playing with the yarn. He quickly went to find Antonio to tell him what the kitten had done.
- 8 “Oh, no! It’s our job to clean up the mess,” cried Antonio. The boys quickly picked up the yarn and put it back in the basket. When the mess was cleaned up, Antonio and Julio made the kitten her own toy from a piece of yarn.
- 9 “Just think, Julio, two kittens would have made a bigger mess,” said Antonio.
- 10 “That’s right,” laughed Julio. “Maybe sharing isn’t so bad after all!”

The Great Big Turnip

A Tale from Russia

- 1 A man, a woman, and their son, Sonny, lived in a little yellow house. Beside the yellow house was a little garden, and in the garden was a little purple turnip.
- 2 With tender care the turnip grew and grew. Finally the day came to harvest the big purple turnip so it could be eaten. The man took hold of the vegetable's thick stem and pulled. The turnip didn't move! Even when the woman and the man tried to pull it up together, the turnip remained stuck in the ground.
- 3 A little mouse passing by said, "I can pull up the turnip." The man tried not to laugh and, thanking the mouse for her kind offer, told her she was too small.
- 4 "Maybe Sonny can help," said the woman. The man grabbed the turnip, the woman held onto the man, and Sonny held onto his mother. Together they all pulled. Still the turnip would not budge.
- 5 "Maybe my friend Sally can help," said Sonny. He went to get Sally, and they all formed a line and pulled with all their might. Still the turnip would not come up.
- 6 "Maybe Sparky can help," said Sally, and she called her dog to add to the group's strength. Everyone pulled hard, but the turnip stayed put.
- 7 "Maybe Silky can help," said Sparky, and he ran to find the cat. Together they all tried without success to pull that turnip from the ground.

- 8 The little mouse, who had been watching all of this, started whistling softly and tapping her tiny foot. “She thinks she can help,” said the man. So the mouse held onto the cat, who held onto the dog, who held onto the girl, who held onto the boy, who held onto the woman, who held onto the man, who held onto the turnip. Together they all pulled.
- 9 Suddenly, pop! Out came the turnip! It flew into the air. Everyone tumbled backward.
- 10 “See?” said the mouse. “I told you I could do it.”

Writing The Boxcar Children

- 1 Gertrude Chandler listened. Another train was rolling down the tracks outside her house in Putnam, Connecticut. She loved living across the street from the railroad station. With her brother, John, and her sister, Frances, she often went outside to wave at the people on passing trains.
- 2 Sometimes, Gertrude was ill and had to stay home from school. When she was not feeling well, books were her friends. She loved to read. She also enjoyed making her own books to give as gifts. One day in 1899, Gertrude glanced out the window at a train. She could see inside its last car, the caboose. She saw a small stove, cups, and a coffeepot. How cozy it looked! It was like a little home. Wouldn't it be wonderful to live in a caboose?
- 3 After high school, Gertrude decided to find a job. She had always loved to write. Soon she was writing for a newspaper in her town. Later, at age twenty-six, she wrote her first real book. With her sister, Gertrude wrote more books. Most of these were for grown-up readers.
- 4 In 1924, Gertrude wondered again about living in a train car. She decided to write a story called The Boxcar Children. The characters in the book were called the Alden children. They were named Henry, Jessie, Violet, and Benny. The Alden children lived in an empty train car and had many adventures together. When Gertrude became a teacher, she read the boxcar book to her pupils.
- 5 During the next thirty years, Gertrude wrote eighteen more books about the boxcar children. She died in 1979, but her well-loved books live on. The adventures of Henry, Jessie, Violet, and Benny still bring smiles to the faces of young readers.
